Portions of Zimmerman's Skull Presented as an Exhibit Today.

JOYCE MURDER TRIAL CONTINUES

Mrs. Zimmerman Tells Her Story--Physicians Report Their Opinions on Cause of Death--Many Present.

The hearing of the evidence in the Zimmerman murder case was continued this morning. Mrs. Zimmerman testified as to the condition of her husband when he arrived home on the morning of May 24 and of her hastening to the home of Dr. Farnsworth to secure medical aid. Her husband had told her that he had fallen and hurt his head and that the accident occurred near the pump at the lower end of the courthouse park. Mrs. Zimmerman was unable to restrain her tears during her testimony.

Many Witnesses

Frank and James Fifield and Fred Capello testified as to the fight in the courthouse park which they had witnessed on returning from a meeting of the Whist club at the home of Frank Jackman. Fred Capello saw a man who said his name was Tom Joyce whipping another fellow and heard him later challenge six of the spectators to a battle. Paul Bluhm testified that on Sunday forenoon, May 24, just after a dog fight which had been held in the neighborhood of his brother Ernest's home, he had heard Tom Joyce say: "I hit a man with a stone last night." The conversation lasted a half hour, he said, but that was all that he could remember of it. He denied that since that time he had ever talked with his brother on the matter.

Dr. Farnsworth on Stand

Edward Zimmerman of the town of Monroe, a brother of the murdered man, testified that when he was called to the bedside a short time before Herman Zimmerman's death, the latter could not speak and could move only his left arm and leg. He had continual spasms and convulsions. Dr. Farnsworth took the stand and testified that he was first called to attend the case about three o'clock on the morning of May 24. Before he had dressed Mrs. Zimmerman called a second time asking him to hurry. Upon arriving at the house he found Zimmerman on the floor in the southeast room. He washed his hands in a carbolic solution and made an examination of the wound with his fingers. He found one half inch to the left of the middle line of the forehead and one and a half inches above the eye-brow what he thought to be a straight linear depression three-fourths of an inch long and one-sixteenths of an inch deep.

The Temperature Falls

The dressing of the wound was described minutely. On Monday morning the patient had a slight headache but was able to move about the house. The temperature and pulse-beat were both high and the face was swollen. The swelling of the face was attributed to erysipelas. Thursday night the swelling and temperature were both reduced. Friday morning the swelling and erysipelas had disappeared. Dr. Farnsworth left the city and Dr. Merritt took charge of the case.

In Comatose State

When the former returned on Monday and again visited Zimmerman he found him in a comatose state.

NAPHTHA EXPLOSION WRECKS BUILDINGS

Spontaneous Combustion Is Supposed to Have Started Fire in Tank Car at Greenwood, Pa.

Dover, Del., Dec. 3.—An explosion of a tank car of naphtha in the center of a freight train on the Delaware division of the Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington railroad caused two and probably three deaths, the injury of number of persons, the wrecking of several buildings and a number of freight cars. The accident occurred at Greenwood, twenty-five miles south of this city.

The explosion is thought to have resulted from spontaneous combustion. The burning fluid was scattered in all directions. Fifteen cars were wrecked. Engineer B. W. Shepard of Wilmington is missing and is believed to be buried under the wrecks.

RAISE CASH FOR DOWIE

FORCE NON-BELIEVERS TO LEAVE ZION CITY

The Followers of Elijah Second Rally Loyal to His Call for Financial Aid--He May Yet Win His Case--Zion Guards Work Rounding Up Delinquents.

(Special to Scripps-McLae.)

Chicago, Dec. 3.—John Alexander Dowie has been appointed temporary manager of Zion City's industries. His appointment by Judge Kohlsaat satisfied the creditors, whose representatives had reported Dowie's affairs in better condition than they had anticipated.

"Infection from some unclear matter as a result of the injury received."

"Is a fracture of the skull more dangerous than a fracture of any other bone?"

"It is."

"Why didn't you trephine?"

"He (the patient) wouldn't follow my advice."

"You realized that the brain might be injured and that the trephining operation should be performed?"

"No, it would not have necessarily have prevented injury."

Surroundings Unsatisfactory

"If you realized that the proper treatment would have been to trephine, why didn't you do it?"

"Because of the surroundings."

The physician then went on to say that the house was dirty and that Zimmerman refused to be removed to the hospital. When asked if he could have cleaned up a room and operated, the witness said he didn't think so--that he wouldn't have taken the chance. Witness said he did not know why he had not refused to take the case when the patient refused to follow his instructions. He said that if the man had been taken to the hospital the trephining operation would have been performed immediately.

Dr. Whiting on Stand

Dr. Joseph B. Whiting, Jr., who was present at the autopsy over the body, corroborated Dr. Farnsworth's testimony.

He said that the pressure on the brain would not have affected any organ or member of the body necessarily. An absolute guarantee against infection, he said, had not been discovered.

He testified that the membrane lining of the skull was punctured in several places and that much pus had accumulated near the wound. Zimmerman's skull, he said, was thicker than the ordinary.

The use of force for such a purpose has never before been attempted nor threatened by Dowie in his various conflicts with recognized authorities at Zion or in Chicago. Many persons intimate with Dowie's methods discredit the rumor of armed opposition to the authority of the receivers.

Zion guards are a well drilled body of men, ably officered and amply armed, and could easily should the attempt be made, overpower the present custodians who have control of the industries and are not prepared to meet such a contingency.

Oust Strangers From Town.

All persons not members of the church have been ordered from the city, and this order has been enforced by the Zion guards, who rounded up stragglers, and where resistance was met, sent them to the city jail.

Zion Guards Are Armed.

Late reports from Zion City are that the Zion guards, heavily armed, congregated after the regular meeting at the rear of the tabernacle. Members of the Zion host marched through the streets shouting, "Praise be to Zion!" and "Down with the receivers!"

At the meeting it was said that no regular collection was made, but money, household goods, and articles of apparel which could be changed into coin were piled at the feet of Dowie as he alternately pleaded with and wept over his flock.

The investigation of the condition of affairs in Zion City will require a week.

"I will have the receivers removed inside of five days," Dr. Dowie declared, "and will have all my debts paid before the first of the year."

Faithful to Leader.

In spite of this chilly reception in the first few minutes of the meeting, Dowie's followers responded loyally to his appeal for aid to tide him over his present straits. Reports from Zion City declared that by cash contributions and pledges the devoted followers of "Elijah III." had raised money enough to more than wipe out Dowie's present indebtedness of $100,000. Most of this amount was raised by subscriptions. It is said, although the contribution boxes were heavy when the deacons presented them to the overseer.

This much was gleaned from the guarded answers of Zionists after the meeting had adjourned. Smiles took the place of the anxious looks they had worn when they entered the tabernacle to listen to the "prophet's" mingled tirade against outsiders and appeal to the faithful, and they were so jubilant as the result of their leader's address that they could not refrain from admitting that money had been contributed and subscribed in large amounts. The "Doctor," they said, had told them that the receivership would be speedily withdrawn and that "Zion would again reign."

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 3.—That five of Attorney John McDonald's clients decided to plead guilty in the supreme court was the sensational scandal in the water plant bottle scandal. The five men appeared before the police magistrate and waived examination to the higher court.

It is generally understood that those who plead guilty of accepting bribes will be punished by fines and no im-officials who insist upon having trials.

The five men who waived examination are ex-Aldermen John Bohanan,

SKATING RISKY SPORT AS YET

THEORIES CONCERNING RIVER

Bulletin Gives More Reasons as to the Effect of Disappearing Woodlands.

The ice on the river has been slowly thickening since the cold weather and this is now covered with snow. Numbers of skaters are out, and have been skating around the edges where the ice is the thickest for several days, in spite of the risk. The possible spice of danger seems to add zest to the enjoyment, and the skaters are very crowd. It is a picturesque scene, watching the expert ones cutting fancy figures on the ice, while those just beginning are struggling bravely to learn the art which looks so easy. At this time the ice is far from strong and it is decidedly perilous to skate on it so early in the season. However, people will always keep on doing it, until some accident happens to make them realize too late perhaps, the foolishness.

Rock river is a very beautiful one and the people of Janesville are justly proud of it. There was a decrease in the volume of water several years ago, which caused much alarm in some sections. The Bureau of Forestry, U. S. department of agriculture, made a thorough investigation and have lately made public the results. Every person in Rock county ought to read the bulletin which gives a history of Rock river and deals with the relation of the forest growth to the water flow, and the extent and topography of the Rock river watershed. The result of the study is summarized as follows:

The Report

The geological and topography of the Rock river water shed are favorable to a sustained water supply since the settlement of the region the forests have been much reduced in area, while the conditions of growth in those that remain have changed for the worse. Cultivated lands and wood lots have been largely converted into pasture, thus interfering with the water flow.

In some districts the swamp and fields have been artificially drained. Since 1885 the rainfall has decreased. This loss has probably lessened slightly the volume of the river flow. Fluctuations in the flow, however, have been caused by artificial drainage and by changes in the forest conditions of the region. Of these the latter is probably the more important cause. Forests diminish the loss of water by evaporation from the ground. At Nancy, France it has been found that in the summer months, five times as much water is evaporated outside of the forest as within it. Against this must be set off the slight loss of water which is intercepted in falling by the leaves of the trees that evaporated without ever reaching the ground, and the consumption of water by the trees for their own needs. It is doubtful, however, whether the loss from the latter cause is not greater in the case of field crops than in the forest.

On the whole, it is safe to say that a larger proportion of the precipitation gets ultimately into the streams from a forest covered region than from one that is unforested. Forests exert a very important influence in equalizing the stream flow. Snow melts more slowly in the woods than on open ground, and the water holding capacity of forest soil retards the run of both rain and snow water.

Timber Going

The reduction which has taken place in the area of forested land in the Rock river region has therefore had an unfavorable effect on the streams. That part of the original forest which still remains has undergone a change in character. Cutting and pasturing have produced an open growth. One result of this is greater evaporation. Another result is a deterioration in the character of the soil and a consequent loss of moisture holding capacity. Grass and weeds have entered, and the absorption by a growing soil cover has thus been increased. Changes in stream flow have therefore resulted from the changed conditions of the forest which remains, as well as from the loss of that which has disappeared.

General Railroad Notes

C. V. Howard has been appointed ticket agent for the Pacific Coast Steamship company, with office in Chicago.

Fred S. James, until recently a trainmaster, has been appointed superintendent of the Omaha division of the Illinois Central to succeed A. Philbrick.

The appointment of C. L. Kimball of Cleveland, as successor to the late H. J. Dering, assistant general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania lines at Chicago, was announced yesterday.

Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad trains will begin running into Rochester, N. Y., over the Western New York and Pennsylvania railroad tracks (controlled by the Pennsylvania railroad) on Jan. 1.

P. S. Eustis, passenger traffic manager of the Burlington, who was prostrated with pneumonia and left Chicago Nov. 5 to try the benefit of a warmer climate, is recovering health. He went directly to Los Angeles, Cal., and is now in Los Angeles, Cal. After leaving California and spending a few weeks in Colorado he is expected to return to Chicago.

A tonic that strengthens the stomach, cures the clogged up liver, makes every organ of the body move correctly. That's what Rocky Mountain Tea will do. Voiss' Pharmacy.

It is further believed that this added return may be secured by any one of ordinary intelligence, and enterprise, without expert assistance and without the outlay of capital or a condition other than that of a little time and thought. It is in order to show this to practical farmers that the latter part of this report has been prepared, and it is earnestly hoped that it will be received the careful attention of those who are interested in bettering themselves, that have not as yet given much thought to the possibilities of the wood lot, which is, after all, an important part to the good farm.

The bulletin contains many practical suggestions and will be found of value to those interested in the subject.

If you don't know what you want, try Mrs. Austin's pancakes for a really good breakfast.

DUAL ALLIANCE MAY BE FORMED

Beloit and Lake Forest University Talk of an Athletic Union.

Coaches Jack Hollister and Clarence Herschberger of Beloit and Lake Forest colleges, respectively, have informally discussed a proposed dual athletic agreement between the two schools. With these two were Prof. McKee, president of the athletic board at Lake Forest, and one or two alumni.

The plan in its present scope is to draw up a set of rules calling for a three or four year agreement which provides for contests between the two colleges in football, baseball, and track meets. Where it is feasible other games will be provided for, as in tennis, golf, and any teams the enthusiasm of the students may get together on.

This agreement promises to be one of the most important moves made in years between smaller schools. Beloit is particularly known as a sturdy little school, and its teams in the past have made excellent showings against Wisconsin, Michigan, Chicago, and others. It was from this school that big Ed Merrill was starred in the big conference meets in Chicago. From Beloit's baseball teams have come such men as Pitcher Addins and Beaumont, the Pittsburgh outfielder, rated the fastest man in the outer gardens on one of the fastest teams in the country.

Lake Forest's stronghold in the past has been in football, though there was a big slump till Herschberger was selected to take hold of the coaching of the game up there. Since that time the team has steadily improved, until this year it won every game, played, with the exception of the Notre Dame contest, in which it was beaten 28 to 0, after holding the score to 6 to 0 in the first half.

WESTERN TEAM IS PLANNING A TRIP

The All Stars Will Meet an Eastern Team in New York Soon.

Five Wisconsin football stars have been asked to become members of an all western football team, and compete with an all eastern team in a game to be played at Madison Square garden, New York city, about the middle of the present month. The five Wisconsin men selected were P. J. O'Den, Arthur Curtis, Allen C. Abbott, and Arno C. Lorum. The first four were captains of Wisconsin teams, and Lorum is perhaps the best guard ever in a Wisconsin line. Of the five selected, Arthur Curtis is the only one who has declined going, because he would be unable to get away at that time. Among others who have been asked to join the team are Rothger and Stahl of Illinois and Salmon of Notre Dame. The game is to be one of a series of athletic exhibitions to be held Dec. 15-19 in New York. The western team will leave for the east in a special car Dec. 9.

PLAY GOPHERS NEXT SEASON

All Talk of Wisconsin's Cutting the Minnesota Team Is Now Over.

At a meeting of the Wisconsin football men for the purpose of talking over the schedule of next year, it was the unanimous sentiment of the men that Minnesota be played next season. This expression from the members of the team will put an end to all discussion favoring the dropping of the Gophers from the schedule and will undoubtedly lead to a more friendly feeling between the two institutions than has been shown during the last few years.

The sentiment of the meeting was also that only three big games be played, as this season showed how unsafe it would be to play more than that. Loring favored playing only two big games, but under the existing circumstances finally decided that three would have to be played.

This means that Northwestern will not be in the schedule, as Wisconsin is already under contract with Michigan, Minnesota, and Chicago. Michigan will be played in Madison about Nov. 1, Minnesota at Minneapolis about the middle of the month, and Chicago on Marshall field on Thanksgiving day. The Saturday before the Chicago game will be left open and small teams will be taken in during the open dates in November. The men are cheerful as to next season and believe that under Curtis next year Wisconsin will have a strong eleven.

Take our word for it. Come to our store and get a package of Rocky Mountain Tea. If it cures you, get your money. That's fair. 35 cents. Voiss' Pharmacy.

MUCH PLEASURE FOR THE GUESTS

The Court Street Foreign Missionary Society Met with Mrs. Lowell.

Yesterday afternoon the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Court Street Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. Lowell. Mrs. J. H. Tippett was the leader of the afternoon. Upon entering the pleasant home of Mrs. Lowell, one would fancy herself in a Japanese bazaar, so attractive had the rooms become with elegant Japanese vases of all sizes and values, pitchers, unique trays, lacquered work boxes, pictures in full costume, fans, parasols, large and small; shading, cosy corners, one even resting upon the crown of the hostess; a card of the Japanese alphabet, romanized, showing their increasing desire for education; gorgeous lanterns suspended from door latches and diagonally through rooms, and Fujiyama or towering over all. The study was The Child and His Mission, and the Growth of His Kingdom in Japan. The extensive knowledge of the field of our leader, Mrs. L. N. Cheney, through wide reading and correspondence with her brother and other relatives in the work, made the study an interesting profitable one. Japan seemed nearer and dearer because of the home of Susie Lowell Hilliard and the young missionary, Esther, who was suggested as a member of the auxiliary. The closing was the coming of two young ladies, Misses Cheney and Lang, attired in brilliant Japanese costumes, bearing lapins filled with fragrant tea, and the dullest of delicacies. A scene of beauty and culture is a joy forever.

FRESH EGGS ARE A RARE LUXURY

HARD TO OBTAIN AT ANY PRICE THIS WEEK.

Many Hens Work Overtime, and Eggs Now Sell at Twenty-Eight Cents Per Dozen.

Fresh eggs are a luxury. The cunning little hens throughout the country are evidently union hens or the roosters are on a strike and the hens have gone on a sympathetic lock-out. At any rate dealers claim that few are being brought into the city. The few that are, are eagerly sought after by the consumers and bring good prices that make them almost worth their weight in silver. Every year just such a scarcity is found in the egg market and this year is no exception to the usual way the hens control the supply.

It would appear that when these hens are scarce the people want them all the more and think they cannot get along without them. A little later the supply will become more plentiful when the hens get used to the cold weather.

Even then, this supply does not amount to anything. Every year at this time the hens begin to grow reluctant about depositing the ivory ovals in the secluded corners of the coops but this winter they seem to have imbibed labor sentiments to such a degree that a general strike is evident all over the country. Such things as "unfair hens" are heard of.

Eggs, that are newly laid, in Janesville are a luxury. They are selling at 28 cents a dozen, about 21 cents each. Some grocers anticipate a gradual raise if continued cold weather should not in.

Few farmers are bringing in any and the few that do reach the city from Rock county have houses usually filled with private customers immediately without getting into the hands of the middleman. Dealers are mostly purchasing their supplies from cold storage houses in this part of the state and from merchants in neighboring towns. The stock of one of these houses located in Readsburg is reported to be exhausted and fears are entertained that other storage plants will also run short if the present scarcity does not soon cease.

Were Higher Two Years Ago.

Two years ago during the extremely cold season the price advanced to thirty five cents and forty cents a dozen and a repetition of these circumstances is feared unless the weather is mild.

Prices High in the East.

Strictly fresh eggs are quoted at thirty cents a dozen in Chicago, forty-five cents in New York and seventy cents in Boston, while in Minneapolis they sell at twenty-four cents. The Boston quotation is the highest on record at the Hub city. It is generally attributed to an unvoiced reluctance upon the part of New Englanders to expend their money for luxuries.

"It must be very extraordinary conditions," said a prominent merchant, "that have sent Boston eggs as high as seventy cents." But the result will be, as usual, that everybody, almost, will stop eating eggs; stocks will pile up, and within a very short time eggs will be selling considerably cheaper in Boston than in places where the market has not bulged so badly. Nobody can corner the egg market. The public shouldn't worry.

Washington, Dec. 2.—The head or crowning feature of the statue of freedom was successfully hoisted to its position on the dome of the Capitol today, amidst cheers of spectators below and a salute of cannon. The figure is made of bronze, nineteen feet high, and weighs 15,000 pounds. It was designed by Crawford and cast by Clark Mills.

Festival's Festival! The Ninth Annual Festival of WATER WITCH Engine Company No. 2 will be held at the Myers' House, Janesville, on Friday evening, Dec. 18th, 1864. Committee of Arrangements: Henry Hemming, Adam Skelly, John Gorham, A. D. Stoddard, John Johnson, John C. Spencer. Members of the Fire Department will appear in uniform.

New York, Dec. 3.—World's Washington special says: The campaign in Virginia is ended. All forward movements on the part of the army of the Potomac have ceased, and our forces have already nearly completed their returns to the old base along the Orange and Alexandria railroad, at Culpepper and Brandy Station. The retrograde movement commenced Tuesday. It is said in Washington that the failure to carry out the plans of the war department will cause the loss of General Meade's position as commander of the army of the Potomac. The reasons given for the abandonment of the campaign are that Lee was so strongly entrenched as to delay any rapid advance on our part. Our army fell back safe and orderly, the enemy being ignorant of our intentions. General Sedgwick and Hooker are prominently named for General Meade's successor, if any change is made.

Whiskey in Richmond is a dollar and fifty cents a drink. A man is as proud of being drunk, there as ever an old fellow was of having the gout.

After the dedication services at Gettysburg, President Lincoln proceeded to the church arm in arm with the renowned Tom Burns, the brave old man of Gettysburg, who shouldered his musket and joined our forces at the time of the battle there. Burns fought with the 7th Wisconsin, in the Iron Brigade.

Coming Attractions.

"Human Hearts." So strong an impression did "Human Hearts" make upon a prominent clergyman in New York, that he wrote to the gentleman impersonating Tom Logan, vigorously endorsing the play and informing him of his intention of trotting all the orphans of a local asylum out to see it at his own expense. And he did it.

"You cannot conceive," said Manager Nankville, of the appreciation of those youngsters at the change of sermon thus afforded them, unless you had listened to that gallery the day they attended. "With the gods present," he continued, "as often as I have myself enjoyed sitting through it, it was as enjoyable as a box of monkeys sprinkled over with tears. Quite often since, have city schools whose principals were aware of the great merit in the play, been given a half holiday, that the youngsters might enjoy a matinee. And what out spoken critics the tots have been. You can't get a favorable criticism or a padded eulogy for love of money from a juvenile. You must give him the goods or he denounces you broadcast, and I am really grateful to the tots of America for their appreciation of what all now agree to be one of the best American plays."

Ezra Kendall

The irreducible Ezra Kendall, with his twinkling eye, his slow smile, and his persuasive drawl, not forgetting his sky scraper hat, will be at the Myers' Grand on Friday evening, with his new play "The Vinegar Buyer", which has been voted one of the big successes of the present season. As a monologuist he was supreme, and as a star in his own attractive human story of real life in this small town of Indiana, and to which is woven a collection of interesting characters, bright and witty dialogue, and impressive situations, all of which in the hands of a superb cast, supporting the indomitable Ezra Kendall, should prove a most delightful entertainment.

MR. COOK'S STATEMENT.

Ex-Congressman Cook of Neenah, makes the following statement through the columns of his home paper, concerning his candidacy for governor. It will be read with interest:

"I had supposed that my statement, in your paper of Nov. 19, left no doubt as to my position in this matter. I have no hesitancy in saying that I am a candidate for the republican nomination for governor, not as a representative of any faction or with any other motive in view than the promotion of harmony in the party.

It is, I believe, the consensus of opinion in Wisconsin that the primary election bill, which passed the last legislature and received the signature of the governor, should be adopted by the people at the next state election.

I am in favor of an elective rate commission. The people have the most at stake in this matter and they should choose the members of that commission, by direct vote. This is a true representative government.

I regard the taxation of railroads as settled by the last legislature, whereby railroad property was placed upon the ad valorem basis, but in line with this I would go further and urge that each corporation, as well as each individual, should bear its just burden of taxation. In fact, I believe that in the enactment of laws to govern that every legitimate industry—whether it be the corporation, the working man, the farmer, or the banker—each shall have just and fair consideration alike, no more, no less.

Should I be the choice of the people of Wisconsin, I will strive to run the business of the state on business principles, remembering the fact that it should be run not for the greatest number, but for the good of all."

There has been some talk on the part of the governor's advisors, that Mr. Cook was a man of straw, and that his candidacy was for effect. It has even been intimated that possibly he might be satisfied to turn his aspirations towards the senatorship, as the success of Mr. Quarles. This second statement, which confirms Mr. Cook's first announcement, sets at rest any speculation concerning his intentions, and his opponents will find it necessary to deal with him as a full fledged candidate.

What he has to say about taxation will strike a popular cord as all fair minded people believe that all classes of property, as well as individuals, should bear its just proportion of these burdens.

His declaration for harmony will also meet with popular approval. The party has been rent asunder long enough and it is time to get together. Mr. Cook, or any other man who accomplishes this is entitled to support and encouragement.

As regards a rate commission, the representatives of the people are better able to determine than the individual, be he a private citizen or an official. The same is true in a broader sense of the primary law. It matters not what may be Mr. Cook's opinion, or the governor's on this question. It has been referred to the people, and they are competent to determine whether they care to experiment with it or not. There will be ample time to discuss the question during the campaign and there is reason to believe that the vote will be intelligent.

The Gazette is glad to know that Mr. Cook is a candidate. He has a host of friends throughout the state who will be pleased to support him.

A NEW BANK.

The good people of Edgerton are rejoicing over the fact that they have a new bank. The enterprise has been under consideration for some time by some of the substantial business and professional men, and last Saturday, November 28th, the doors of the First National bank were thrown open to the public. Aside from a general banking business, a saving department is added and deposits of $1.00 or more will encourage children and others to cultivate the habit of saving. Interest at the rate of 3 per cent, compounded semi-annually, will be paid. The officers of the bank, including the directors are:

Geo. W. Doty, Pres.; W. H. McChesney, M. D., Vice Pres.; V. S. Kidd, Cashier, U. G. Miller, Theo. A. Clarke, Samuel Hall and Ezra Bussey. A list of the names which inspires confidence and commands respect.

The bank is conveniently located occupying the west store room in the Schmeling Hotel, which has been remodeled for the use of the bank people, who have a lease for a term of years.

The front of the building has been rebuilt of Menominee brick, with large plate glass windows and a heavy oaken door, presents a very attractive appearance.

The interior or bank furniture proper is a very handsome quarter sawed oak and is as neat and attractive a piece of work as can be found anywhere.

The bank has one of the latest improved Moser screw door, burglar proof safe, with a triple time lock, which will be used for currency. In addition they have a large fire proof National safe, which is intended for books, papers and matters of record.

The Gazette bespeaks for the bank a prosperous career.

THE TURN OF THE TIDE.

The trade returns for October indicate clearly that prosperity in the United States is not at an end. Our total exports for that month were 160,13 millions of dollars, the largest monthly total, with one exception, ever known in the history of the Treasury. The gain in exports for October over September were nearly $50,000,000. Imports for October were nearly $82,000,000 leaving a balance of trade in favor of the United States of $78,439,054.

The increase in the international trade for October is traceable, of course, to the enormous outward shipments of cotton, which, as reported last week in "The Financier", amounted to over $39,000,000 above September, and about $18,000,000 above October, 1902. It is noteworthy the latter gain is two millions in excess of the total gain in all commodities—that is, other exports decreased slightly, as compared with a year ago. Still of the total gain in exports have risen also. As a matter of fact the increase is traceable almost entirely to domestic commodities, which rose on export totals, no less than $43,000,000. This leaves something like $6,500,000 which can't be set down to increases in exports of manufacturers, etc.

The heavy increase in exports for the month bring the "balance of trade in favor of the United States to $308,064,053 for the ten months of the present year now closed. At this time last year the total was only 298 millions. In the several previous years named agricultural exports were exceptionally heavy.

On the face of the October showing, there is reason for believing that the tide has turned, so far as our international trade is concerned. Imports will not advance unless all signs fail, and exports will rise. At the close of the calendar year our balance of trade will be larger than was the case at the end of 1902. Already our manufacturers are taking steps to expand their foreign trade, and the coming year ought to witness quite a revival in this department of American industry.—The Financier.

Dowie and Zion have finally come to grief. Debts to the amount of about $400,000 have accumulated and attachments issued against the property. The New York Junct was a financial failure and Dowieism received a set back from which it will not soon recover.

Even the mayor of Chicago has shuddered at the sweet heart of Van Dine the car barn murderer exhibiting herself for public gaze at 10 cents a look to save her criminal sweet heart from the gallows.

Tom Joyce is on trial for his liberty charged with a murder. Morbid curiosity leads many women to the court room to see the accused man.

The people are waiting patiently to hear from Judge Baensch. It is reported that an effort is being made to side track him, but it will not succeed.

Lincoln, Nebraska, must be quite lost without the well known frock coat and the old soft hat of the boy orator of the Platte being seen on the streets.

With Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Bryan out of the race, democracy ought to be able to harmonize.

Now comes Colombia who will be glad to give us the canal rights free if we will only tell Panama what a bad boy she has been and to go back home.

John Alexander may wish now he had not gone to New York to conquer the flesh pots of America.

William Jennings Bryan is having a gay old time in England and really is being meted right and left by the best of them.

Dime novels and bad company have brought more than one man within the prison walls.

Mrs. Dowle may be sorry she lost those diamonds in New York before the receivers get through with John Alexander.

It may be crime to shoot a Chicago policeman after all.

Did you notice that Governor Peck of the "Bad Boy" fame believes Bryan to be a dead one.

Mr. Dowle has gone down before the ruling of the federal court but his followers say he will fool them all yet.

Colon seems to be the center point of all talk on the canal these days.

PRESS COMMENT.

Milwaukee Wisconsin: Here's a question for economists: Will members of congress be entitled to draw mileage for going home and returning between the special and the regular sessions even if there is no time for them to undertake that trip?

Green Bay Gazette: Poor marksmanship on the part of many hunters probably accounts for the increase in the number of deer and it also accounts for the fact that a good many of the hunters get out of the woods alive.

Milwaukee Wisconsin: Sad to say, soft tail and the turkey have come to out a larger figure in the imaginations of a majority of Americans than the religious services appropriate to the observance of the day and especially recommended in the president's proclamation.

Madison Journal: Governor La Follette is charged with trying to get his hand in and get part of the credit for the municipal house-cleaning now going on in Milwaukee. Well, Bob is given to the unexpected; he is liable to turn up anywhere and do most anything, so this would not be surprising if true.

Shawano Advocate: It is said that Governor La Follette will have the republican convention meet in Madison May 18. This will be earlier than it has ever been held before.

It will give him more time to talk after the convention and tell them why their taxes are so low. From May until November, it's a long time. He can make every village and cross-road in that time.

Milwaukee News: Governor La Follette's Thanksgiving proclamation said nothing about a meeting at the executive office of apostles of "reform" to devise "ways and means" to skin the other fellows so as to hold on to the offices. The proclamation advised the people to repair to houses of worship and render thanks for the bounties of life. This seems to be another case where reform's right hand does not let its left hand know what it's doing.

Waukesha Freeman: It appears to be settled that but one state convention will be held next year by republicans, and that, therefore, the delegates to the national convention and the candidates for state offices will be chosen by the same set of delegates. It is generally conceded that this will give the administration forces a material advantage and it need be no surprise that they take it. That is what any set of politicians would do under the same conditions. The convention will be held in May.

La Crosse Chronicle: Judge Baensch would indeed be a foolish man to entertain an idea that he could harmonize the remains of the old machine and the new machine. What he proposes to do is to harmonize the republican party which has been an unwilling spectator of this disgraceful episode in Wisconsin's political history, and which will seize with delight upon the opportunity to get away from the blackguards and unpleasantness of petty partisan politics, and to follow the lead of a real, broad-minded republican in the political caravan which we expect to take the party back to power in this state, and to carry the usual number of republican senators and representatives to the United States congress.

Hawkeye grub: It appears that the Autmatic Self-tightening Belt Coupler is a novelty full of merit. It does away with the vexatious old system of shortening a sewing machine or any round leather belt. Makes the belt easy to shorten, and of regulating the length and tension of belt that could not be done by pinching in leather. No wire to bind up, then hammer down, never has to be removed, laid over, and readjusted to the belt and leather. Lady and gentle men cutting belt everywhere. Big profit.

Hair Used for Wigs.

Most of the black hair used in wigs and "switches" comes from the Italian and Spanish convents, and most of the blonde hair from the heads of Swedish, Danish, Russian and German peasant girls.

is much better known to fame as "Jones; he pays the freight," and by the great scale industry which he has built up at Binghamton, New York. The interest attaching to this veteran hero and his various activities will be heightened by the appearance of "Richard Baxter." General Jones spent his early days in the country, and knows whereof he writes. The little hamlet, the poor house, the weather-beaten law office, are sketched from past memories, while Olo Caesar, John Manning, Sam Drisco and other characters of the story stand out as familiar and typical village types that one never tires of reading about. From all those men who think they know it all—good Lord deliver us!

There was once a man who was not spoiled by being lionized. His name was Daniel.

Every college boy likes to be addressed as "old man" and members of the bald-headed row always love to be called "my boy."

When you wish to convey the subtlest and most delicate flattery to a man, ask him for advice. It isn't necessary to follow it.

The trouble with most men in love is that they want to hurry. Occasionally there is one who understands that every stage on the way is interesting and should be made the most of.

In the long migrations of the birds from north to south, in the journeys of the blacktail deer of the Rockies, when death lurks by the pathway to their summer or winter homes; in the wild stampede of the buffalo that once ranged the mighty plains—we never hear of a "weaker sex." Queer.

They say that a certain young woman is now inspecting tenements under the tenement-house department of New York had the highest marks of any one of the 3,500 or so candidates who have taken the examinations. Her general average was 97, and she used to be forewoman of a pickle factory. Nice to see plain working people forging ahead sometimes.—Washington Times.

BLUHM TESTIFIED IN JOYCE TRIAL

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON'S SESSION OF COURT INTERESTING.

HE TOLD WHAT HAPPENED

Several Damaging Statements—Does Not Appear Entirely Clear.

In circuit court yesterday afternoon Ernest Bluhm, the principal witness, told the story of his adventures in the company of Tom Joyce and William Allbright on the evening of May 23 and the early morning of May 24. He told of the "rounds" of drinks at the saloons of Herman Buggs and Sheridan on South River street; the pursuit of the man with "Joyce's girl" from the doorway of the Myers Grand to the courthouse park; the fight of the two rivals; the gathering of the crowd; Joyce's challenge to "lick the whole bunch;" the drinking of a pint bottle of whiskey on a bench near the monument; the departure of Allbright at the corner of Pleasant and River streets; and the return of himself and Joyce to the park.

Finding of Zimmerman
All of this narrative was substantially the same as that given in the preliminary trial in municipal court. Sometime after twelve he said that they encountered a man, whose name he afterwards learned was George Champion and a girl near the courthouse. Champion, he said, had Joyce down and he, Bluhm, threw him off. After that the witness said that he and Joyce sat down and went to sleep. After they awakened they went up near the hand-stand, crossed Wisconsin street, and found a man lying on the ground. The man was lying near a tree, his head near the trunk and his feet lower than his head. Bluhm, telling him to get up or he would catch his death of cold. When he did not answer Joyce walked around Bluhm on the east side and began to strike some matches. After he had lighted four or five the man said: "You've lit about matches enough," and started to get up.

Zimmerman Struck Down
According to Bluhm's narrative, as the man started to get up he was struck with a stone. Joyce was on the south side facing the man.

"Who hit him with the stone?"

After the man was hit he went down on his knees and then got up again, saying: "My eye is out." Then Joyce, according to Bluhm, walked up to him and said: "Who the hell are you?" and the man answered: "My name is Zimmerman." When he had said that Zimmerman started to run and Joyce ran after him a ways and made a motion as if to throw another stone.

A Non Combatant
Bluhm denied that he did anything to Zimmerman besides kicking him to wake him up in the first place. He said that after Zimmerman had gone, Joyce told him that he'd fixed him. In the cross examination Bluhm admitted that he had frequented the park on more than one occasion in the spring. Bluhm would not say that he did not hit Champion with a bottle. He denied that he hit Zimmerman. He admitted that he had never seen any stones in the park and that he did not see Joyce pick up any but he avowed that he had gone into the rear at the first fight and before the fight with Champion, saying that he was going to "be ready for those brass-pounders."

Others Examined
Herman Shoenkner, William Allbright, Daisy Terrell, Frank Leek, and George Champion were examined. All but Leek were in the park on the night in question. Champion told about two men stumbling over him. As he got up he was hit by the taller of the two. He said that he threw this man down and gave him a good pounding. Then the shorter one came back and pulled him off. They got up and the tall one after assenting to his question: "Is it all over?" stepped away. As he did so and Champion reached for his hat the shorter slammed him on the head wit a whiskey bottle. He found the girl who had been with him and had fled at the time of the fight, at the London House. She said she had been choked. The witness admitted that the tall man was six feet from him when he was hit with the bottle and that he had ample opportunity to throw stones but did not.

WARD ISSUES PRINTED CARDS

Y. M. C. A. Athletic Schedule and Lecture Course Dates Are Listed.

Physical Director Ward of the Y. M. C. A. has had cards printed with the regular class schedule of the work in the gymnasium and other notices of interest to members. A complete list is also given of the short practical talks which are to be given during the coming winter months by some of the well known doctors who will address the men on subjects appropriate to the work. The complete corrected list is as follows: Lung, Dr. M. A. Cunningham, Dec. 14; Stomach, Dr. S. B. Buckmaster, Dec. 21; Heart, Dr. E. L. Loomis, Dec. 28; Personal Physician, Dr. Jas. Mills, Jan. 4 '94; Eye, Ear and Nose, Dr. A. J. Burdick, Jan. 11; Care of the Teeth, Dr. L. L. Lessie, Jan. 18; Strains, Sprains, Breaks, Dr. T. H. McCarthy, Jan. 25. This course of talks is open to the general membership and the object is that men might be more familiar with the bodies they are developing and more thoughtful in the care of them. It is believed that the plan will meet with much enthusiasm by all members and that the attendance will be good at all of the lectures.

HAYES BROS' WILL SOON FINISH JOB

Contract for a Canal at Marseilles, Illinois, Will Be Filled This Week.

The work of constructing a big canal at Marseilles, Ill., which Hayes Bros., of this city, have had charge, will be completed this week and the total cost is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $500,000. Nearly three hundred men have been employed on the canal for the past year. The contract is with the Marseilles Land and Water Co., and is one of the largest which has been undertaken in that part of the country for some time. Edward Rager, of this city has visited the plant and inspected the work as civil engineer in the interests of the mill owners.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR THE UNION

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH COMMITTEE HAS PROPOSITION.

MEETING HELD ON TUESDAY

Present Plans Are To Build a New Edifice Jointly in Suitable Location.

The official board of Court Street M. E. church was well represented at a meeting held last Tuesday evening for the purpose of receiving a committee of five from the board of the First M. E. church.

This committee was composed of Messrs. Clark, Carey, Austin, Rothamel and Dr. Richards. They were appointed to extend greetings to the Court Street board, and to discuss the question of a united central church.

PRESENT RESOLUTIONS

They presented a series of resolutions and suggestions which expressed the sentiment of their board, and which declared strongly in favor of union on any equitable basis which might be agreed upon. They were met by the same spirit on the part of the Court Street board, and a forward committee, composed of S. Hurd, S. C. Burnham, W. F. Carle, Dr. E. E. Loomis and Mr. Benson, was appointed to represent Court Street church in the undertaking.

OUTLOOK ENCOURAGING
While the effort may result in failure, as previous efforts have done, yet the outlook seems encouraging. The matter appears to hinge principally on the sale of Court Street property. If this can be accomplished within a reasonable time the union will be consummated.

The Court Street people while desiring union, do not feel warranted in sacrificing too much on a property which is in good condition, and increasing in value every year, and especially as the united society would depend largely upon the proceeds of this property for a new church.

ARE VERY WISE

There seems to be a disposition on the part of both societies to make the two properties provide, a new site and building, and in this they are wise. A church debt is a poor legacy, and the disposition in building generally tends to extravagance. There are some societies in town which are church property poor. A modern and commodious building, erected at a cost not exceeding $20,000, is good enough for any society in the city. If the Methodist churchers get together they will make no mistake in putting up this kind of a building.

M'KEYS GO TO CALIFORNIA

Formerly Resided in Janesville—Lately of Whitewater.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McKay and daughter of Whitewater were recently in this city preparatory to leaving for the west, as they intend to make California their future home. Mr. and Mrs. McKay reside for a number of years on Park place in the residence recently purchased by George E. King.

INSANE PEOPLE GO TO ASYLUM

Lucy and Rosa Deal Taken to Menard by Green County Officers.

Lucy and Rosa Deal, two sisters about forty-five years of age, who have been living on a farm near Monroe became insane from overwork and have been sent to the asylum at Mendota. The officers took the two unfortunate through here yesterday. The sisters are the daughters of the late Veronica Deal who was well known in Monroe.

OLIVE LODGE HOLDS ELECTION

Delegates To Represent Local Society at Grand Lodge.

At a pleasant meeting of the Olive Lodge, No. 27, D. of H., last evening Maggie Huntress was elected to represent the local branch at the meeting of the grand lodge. Election of officers was also held and the following members were chosen to positions of trust in the organization: Maggie Huntress, P. C. H.; Mary Dunwiddie, C. of Honor; Katherine Kelly, L. of Honor; Marcella Bronson, C. of Ceremonies; Mary Slator, recorder; Maude Taylor, financier; Margaret Cassidy, usher; Mae Conroy, J. W.; Mabel Brennan, O. W.; Della Doo, trustee (3 years); Maggie Huntress, delegate to grand lodge; Anan Klenow, captain; Matilde Holler, musician.

ROCK COUNTY MAN RETURNS.

Toured California On A Bicycle. Visited His Son But Prefers Badger State.

John Eble, a well known resident of this city has returned from an extended visit with his son in California and the west. He visited many cities and took in the sights on his wheel. He likes the west but prefers Janesville and could not be induced by his son to remain west.

MARRIED THIS MORNING

Judge Jesse Earle this morning performed the ceremony which made Miss Tilly Bekdashoff of Willowdale and Mr. Bert Amer man and wife. The ceremony was performed in the judge's private office and was witnessed by Attorneys Edward Ryan and W. H. Dougherty. The groom is employed by the Janesville Cotton mills and is well thought of by his many friends. The happy couple will make their home in the city.

ADVANCE SALE BIG: The advance sale of seats for "The Vinegar Buyer" in which Ezra Kendall appears Friday night at the opera house, is very large and Manager Myers this morning dusted off the S. R. O. sign with the expectation it would be needed the night of the performance.

For the rummage sale should be left at the Odd Fellows' store, Thursday, Dec. 3rd.

Ladies admitted free at the Palace Rink Friday night.

Mrs. A. C. Munger left for Palmyra this morning to attend the wedding of her niece, Miss May Munger.

CITY OFFICIALS ALL REJOICE

School Board Note Was Paid This Morning—Is Last of City's Floating Indebtedness.

Today City Treasurer Fathers paid the school board note for $2500, which settles the last of the city's obligations outside of the regular bonded indebtedness.

PAID SINCE NEW COUNCIL

Since the beginning of a new council a total floating indebtedness of $2,500 has now been cleared up and most of the amounts which the city had borrowed for various purposes were settled since last July.

THE DIFFERENT ACCOUNTS

There has been previous to the money paid today, $3500 paid from the city treasury for the same purpose, $2500, which was the amount of the general fund and was paid early in the summer. $3000 cleared the debt against the fire and water fund and $1000 bridge account was also paid earlier in the year.

REPORTS

They presented a series of resolutions and suggestions which expressed the sentiment of their board, and which declared strongly in favor of union on any equitable basis which might be agreed upon. They were met by the same spirit on the part of the Court Street board, and a forward committee, composed of S. Hurd, S. C. Burnham, W. F. Carle, Dr. E. E. Loomis and Mr. Benson, was appointed to represent Court Street church in the undertaking.

MAN IS STRUCK BY HEAVY TIMBER

Was Employed at the Knickerbocker Ice Company's Gravel Pit—Spine Is Injured.

J. F. Summers, fireman at the Knickerbocker Ice company's gravel pit east of the city, was struck in the back early this morning by a falling timber and seriously injured. He was attended by Dr. Woods who found the man's spine badly hurt. The Russell ambulance was removed to the Palmer hospital. The accident occurred at nine o'clock this morning. The force of men employed were engaged in closing up the plant for the winter and a man stationed in the high tower of the building accidentally dropped a ten-foot board, which fell to the ground floor and struck Summers on the back. The plank was three inches thick, twelve inches in width, and the force of the blow was terrific. Summers is a single man whose home is in Oconomowoc, Wis.

THE WATCHMAN'S STORY

[Copyright, 1903, by C. D. Lewis.]

I had been the night watchman at Parker's bank for three years when my adventure happened. A burglar alarm connected with doors and windows and a special wire ran from the bank to the police station. I was required to send in a signal over this wire every thirty minutes. The code of signals ran thus: One push on the button, "All is well"; two pushes, "I am ill"; three pushes, "Help is wanted at once."

One winter's night, between calls, I fell asleep and was awakened by a hand clutching my throat. I started up to find three men hovering over me and realized that burglars had come at last. The first thing one of them did was to send in the "All is well" call, and I was then tied fast to my chair, and the trio began work on the doors of the vault. It was done for in about ten minutes.

Then they began work on the inner doors. They used what is called a blacksmith's drill. All of them seemed familiar with its working, and they had brought along no less than six different drills for the machine. Work was begun just under the lock, the men spelling each other at intervals of ten minutes. When the 2 o'clock signal was sent in, they had made a very slight impression on the hard metal, but at 2:30 the signs were more encouraging.

At 3 o'clock the trio were delighted with the progress of the work. At 3:30 they ceased drilling, blew a lot of powder into the hole and inserted a fuse, and pretty soon there was an explosion which tore a great piece out of the door, but did not burst it open.

They did not use the drill again on the door, but on a closer examination decided to blow it open. At 4:30 all was ready. While the leader placed the fuse the other two picked up my chair to carry me into the president's room. All were to remain there until the explosion was over. Just what happened to being about the premature explosion could never be learned, but the probabilities are that in his haste the man cut the fuse too short. He was still kneeling at the door and the three of us had our backs to it and were about eight feet away when the mine was sprung. The jar of the explosion was felt two blocks away.

I cannot remember that I heard the explosion. I simply remember being lifted up and hurled forward. The next thing I knew I was sitting up with a hand over each ear, and the room was in midnight darkness. I felt so stupid and dazed that it was many minutes before I could place myself. The gag was out of my mouth, and the ropes with which I had been bound to the chair were hanging loosely on my arms and legs. When I began to feel around to see where I was I discovered that I was close to the wire gate by which all employees entered the bank enclosure. The door of the vault was almost on a line with this gate, but sixty feet away. Between the gate and the vault were the compartments of bookkeeper, paying teller, receiving teller and discount clerk, each railed off with wood or wire.

You can judge of the strength of that blast when I tell you that everything in that sixty feet was leveled, the small safe blown over and the counters twisted like a rill fence. As soon as I realized the situation I groped for a match and lighted a gas jet, though the room was so full of powder smoke that it was some time before I could see a foot from my nose. When the smoke lifted so that I could get about, I lighted more gas and then looked for the burglars.

One of them lay in a heap against the front door, a second under the counter near where I had picked myself up, and the third I could not find, though I knew he must be under the vault door, which had been blown off and lay on the floor. The man at the front door was stone dead. The doctors said that his body must have swept down all the railings and partitions as he was proved troublesome, I tied him hand and foot. You will wonder that I was not severely hurt, but that was the chance of accident. The chair was completely wrecked, but I got off with three or four painful bruises.

The man under the counter had his nose broken, two ribs fractured and received a bad scalp wound, but he had no sooner recovered consciousness than he began to struggle and curse. When I told him that both his partners were dead, he was awed to silence for awhile. Then he began cursing again, and I stepped over to the police wire and sent in the signal "Help wanted at once." It had never been sent in before, nor have the words gone over that wire since. In five minutes there were four bluecoats knocking at the door, and when I let them in my prisoner greeted them with jeers and curses and swore he would get even with me if it took 100 years.

The leader, as I told you, was kneeling at the door when the explosion occurred. We found him under it, crushed and burned and bearing little semblance to a human being. The one who escaped with his life was sent up for twelve years, and thus the trio were wiped out.

I have an old scrapbook in which are pasted various newspaper articles in my praise, but it's not much consolation to read them. The bank officials knew I must have been asleep on duty, and instead of patting me on the back and raising my wages they waited about a month and then gave me the grand bounce.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

Why the Tortoise Won

Did you ever hear the true story of the race between the hare and the tortoise? Old Brother Terrapin told it to me one day as I lay on my back in the grass by the pond.

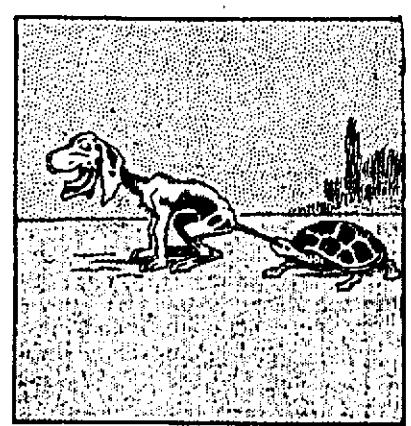

"Never heard the real truth of that victory of mine, did you?" he squeaked as he crawled up to me.

"No, never," said I. "How was it?"

"Well, he laughed, "you see, they always supposed that I won that race by keeping on plodding along at my usual gait while old man Rabbit frisked around and fooled and wasted his time showing off before the spectators."

"But it was nothing of that sort. Let me tell you at the start that all the plodding in the world without a little thought and common sense will never win anything."

"You see, I had a little bone to pick with that 'yaller' dog of Bill Sikes' cause one day when I was asleep he turned me over on my back, and I didn't get my footing for two days and was nearly starved, to say nothing of the worry brought on the old lady and the children. So when Mr. Rabbit and

HE GAVE A TELL OF TERROR.

I started on that race, that you've read of knew at the start that I had no chance to win without some little game. Just then along comes Bill Sikes' 'yaller' dog.

"Mornin'" says he. "Nice day for the race."

"Yes," says I, and if you want to see the start sit right down where you are, and you'll see a great show."

"So down he sat on his yaller tail and opened his yaller jaws and let his red tongue hang out. 'One, two, three, go!' says the starter, and just then I saw my chance and grabbed Mr. Dog's tail between my jaws. He gave one yell of terror and surprise and set off through the woods toward the goal at lightning speed, pulling me through the air after him. My, but we did fly! And when we got near the goal I let go and walked the rest. Mr. Dog was so scared he ran on home. Served him right for turning me over. But I won the race, I tell you, brains count," saying which, he ambled off into the woods.—Atlanta Constitution.

YOUTH INVADES WOMAN'S BALL

College Boy in Dresses and a Coed Are Suspended for Prank.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 3.—An upper classman of the University of Michigan, who in the disguise of a negro got into a fancy dress party where all the guests were supposed to be women, was suspended from the university with the coed that took him to the ball. The party was given by the Woman's League of the university just before Thanksgiving and men were not allowed to attend. The man in question was escorted by one of the prominent coeds and did not arouse suspicion till he began to dance. When Dean Jordan espied the negro she concluded the dancer was not graceful enough for a woman and forced "her" to unmask. The double suspension was the result.

HONOR JUDGE JOHN H. REAGAN

Daughters of the Confederacy Envelop the Veteran in Flags.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 3.—A stirring scene took place here at the meeting of the Daughters of the Confederacy. When John H. Reagan, the only surviving member of Jefferson Davis' cabinet, 85 years old and frail, entered the hall he was seized by the daughters and taken to the front of the hall, where he was wrapped in the old banners of the confederacy. The daughters applauded, cheered and shed tears, and many eyes beside those of the women bore a suspicious moisture.

After being released from his drapery of flags the judge made an eloquent speech to the Daughters of the Confederacy.

BRIDES FOR SOUTH AFRICANS.

Every Outgoing English Steamer Bound for Cape Town Has a Number of Prospective Wives.

Hardly a mail steamer leaves England for Cape Town without bearing on board an English bride for a sweetheart who has gone before to provide a home in that land of promise, says a London dispatch.

Not infrequently the list of passengers includes three or four brides, who ingeniously confide their secret to each other with the result that the vessel is seldom many days at sea before the bride becomes known all over the ship. Sailors consider it lucky to have brides on board.

The bridegrooms meet them at the landing place, and forthwith they repair to a public office to be married by special license, while gentle Jack Tar crowds the gangway, and throw rice among the bride's hair.

These marriages are mostly happy sequel to the conclusion of the war, many Yeoman having decided to settle in South Africa and bring thither the girls they had left behind them.

But there have been exceptions. Flirations on board—not place equals a ship's deck for that pastime—have brought bitter disappointment to waiting bridegrooms. Sometimes girls get engaged on the voyage to fellow passengers or members of the crew, and arrive at the Cape "off with the old love and on with the new."

It has also been recently observed that young girls are going to South Africa from England in increasing numbers as domestic servants in the smaller up country towns. If they have not calculated upon the chances of matrimony, they are not long in their new home before offers come along for their selection.

A SCIENTIST'S BELIEF.

Hindu Investigator Maintains That Metals Have Life as Well as Animals and Vegetables.

"A remarkable discovery," A. Sarath Kumar Ghosh asserts in Pearson's, in his article on Life in Metals, "that has recently been made will mark a new era in the progress of science, for it sweeps away many a pet theory we have hitherto fondly cherished. From time immemorial scientists have vainly asked: What is the quintessence of life? What is the fundamental difference between that which is living and that which is not? By what final test shall we determine that a certain object is animate and another inanimate?"

A suggestion is now made, which, to say the least of it, is astounding and revolutionary. In a book recently published, a distinguished Hindu scientist—Jagadis Chunder Bose, professor of science in the Calcutta University—maintains that the true test of life in an object is its capacity to respond to external stimuli; in other words, its irritability, its sensitiveness. And according to this test he proves conclusively that no essential difference exists between animals and metals; in fine, that a bar of iron is as irritable and sensitive as the human body! More than that; he proves that a bar of metal can be killed—that is, deprived of its sensitiveness forever—just as the human body can be killed. He even shows how our present mistake has arisen; we have called objects non-living that are merely dead—that is, which once were sensitive but are no longer."

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Bingham (manager of the Big Horn mine) and his daughter, overtaken by storm, stop for shelter at the Black Dwarf, a prospect tunnel operated by Jack Darcie (a son of the famous Mountain Lily). The father, having been drinking heavily, falls into a stupor in the warm cabin, and Darcie accompanies Faith to the Big Horn.

CHAPTER II.—Darcie hints to Faith at which house he is staying, from which some strikers who overheard the remark jump to conclusion he is a spy or reporter. He also says he has found in his mountain cabin.

CHAPTER III.—Mike arrs his grievances against labor unions in general and tells Darcie of some of the common scandal concerning Bingham, to the effect that he is not only a "soaked" a coward and incapable of a man and a swindler as well.

CHAPTER IV.—Darcie receives notice from strikers to leave the neighborhood. Abby Steers (Bingham's housekeeper) gives Mike a message for Darcie "from her" called the mountain lily, to meet her at the Big Horn. Mike, elated, receives her and writes a long letter in a blue envelope, which he surrenders to Abby.

VIII. THE LETTER.

Abby's object in following Mr. Bingham was to be first with the story of the shooting on Tuesday night, and to tell it in her own way. She had found him in a very fit state to accept her version of the awkward facts. That half of Mr. Bingham's brain which operated his being when he was emerging from the delirium of drink received the distorted tale, and took a coarse,ullen satisfaction in conceiving that possibly it might be true. He purposed to treat it as the truth, as Abby had given it to him; it suited him in several ways to do so. For one reason, it helped him to a sort of apology for himself, in his conscious betrayal of his daughter, to be able to construct a countercharge against the girl herself. He had been bored by her face of innocence; now he could confront those blue, astonished eyes with questions as searching as their own.

The manager had returned to the mine with his temper at sixes and sevens, and himself in a general state of dispair. Faith had been summoned to speak with him in the library, a demand which very much surprised her, for she was the last one he yearned to see, as a rule, after one of his temporary evanishments from the affairs of men.

Abby, with her bangs more miened than ever, was seated, rocking herself, both feet leaving the floor at once. She looked hard at Faith as she entered the room, but did not rise or cease rocking.

Mr. Bingham languidly rose, and placed a chair for his daughter; she could not look him in the face, his appearance was so deplorable.

"Sit down, Faith," he requested, for the girl had remained proudly standing. "I thought you wished to see me only for a moment; I am not very well," she said.

"I am sorry you are not well," said her father. "I feel pretty rocky myself. Sit down, Ah—Abby, I have something I wish to say to Miss Bingham; I will see you after a while—about the dinner, you know."

Abby seemed half disposed to resent this intimation that her company was not desired; but, apparently thinking it not worth while, she rose, and left the room. Her chair continued to oscillate for some seconds with the parting repulsion communicated to it by her retreating form.

Faith raised her reluctant eyes to her father's face.

Mr. Bingham began hurriedly in a querulous key, clearing his throat, and tapping the buttons of his vest with his gold-rimmed eyeglasses.

"It does not become you, Faith, under the circumstances, to be so excessively respect for yourself in more important ways, and these little forms would not matter. I am afraid you have had a very artificial training. Upon my word, I don't know how a man is to bring up his daughters, or whom he can trust them with; I thought that your aunts had made at least a good girl of you."

"Father, if there is anything you have to find fault with me about, please don't do it through my aunts. If I have disappointed you, it's not their fault."

"No; you are right. It's not their fault any more than it is mine. We have all been deceived. But, I say, it's enough to shake a man's faith in the daylight. Why, I thought that you were pride and innocence itself."

Faith replied with a sad little laugh: "Is it my pride or my innocence that's in doubt?"

"Bless me, bless me, I did not think you could be so hard; I must be plain, then. You cannot be ignorant of the critical situation we are in; a war between capital and labor seems inevit-

"I am not bound to explain it; I am not responsible for his coming."

"Well, I should like to know who this 'Mountain Lily' is that meets young men in woods, alone, at dark hours of the night."

"Father, I will tell you all I know," said Faith, trembling and deadly white, for now she could not doubt with what merciless constructions she had to deal.

"He did call me by that name once, father. It was when we abused his hospitality, and I was left on his hands alone—yes, in the dark hours of the night. It was then, when my father failed me, when he was father and friend and brother to me, that his heart went out to me; his pity made him tender toward me, and he said those words. How they got abroad to be turned to this wicked and shameful use, I cannot tell you, and I do not care. But if they had been the means of bringing him to his death, he would have been the last man—yes, no, he is the first—to say such words to me."

"And do you think that you know the character of this man?"

"How should I know his character? Do I know my own? I know what my father professes to think I am, and to whom he goes for his information. A stranger could hardly expect to fare better than a daughter. If I am—what you say I am, I need not be surprised that he should turn out to be a spy."

"Be careful, Faith. I have given you, in my own mind, the benefit of a last doubt, awaiting your acknowledgment of this man's true character. But if you insist on siding with him—well, you must expect to be judged with him. Here are the proofs of what he is, in his own words."

Mr. Bingham produced a letter in a long blue envelope, unsealed, and without an address. He offered it to Faith.

"I will not touch it!" she cried. "For shame, father! Can you stoop to read a private letter picked out of the pockets of your guest by your own servants?"

"My guest! A pretty sort of guest! My guest is a spy, and he is my prisoner," shouted Mr. Bingham. "I have the right to search, and I have proved his trade on him by the papers he carries. Abby was right to inform our boys of this meeting, and they were right to be there, prepared to take him alive or dead. The time demands it. A spy expects the treatment of a spy; he knows what that is when he agrees to take the job. Now hear what he says for himself. This is a letter addressed to Sir Peter Plympton, the president of our company, as you know. The date is June 30, the day of that occasion you refer to in a manner so respectful to your father, when we first met this Mr. Darcie Hamilton, alias Jack Darcie. His father is Archibald Hamilton, one of our directors, so it's not for the wages he has taken up the trade; it's pure love of the business. I will not stop to read each specific charge that he brings against me; you can read the letter yourself, if you like. Perhaps you have read it."

Faith rejected the letter with a passionate gesture.

"Then you will have to take my word for the contents. It's the old list of charges that is always put up when there is a kick against one man on the misrepresentations of a lot of other men who have something to gain by his downfall. I'm a liar and a thief, and I'm generally incompetent; there's nothing wrong that I haven't done, and there's nothing right that I have. If you won't read it, you can take for granted there's nothing left out. But here is his summing up:

"I would unhesitatingly recommend that work be suspended, and the mine shut down, pending a complete reorganization of the force. The morale of the men is what might be looked for as the result of inefficiency, wasteful extravagance, and corruption in the officers. I should recommend the discharge of every man on the pay rolls, beginning with the manager and excepting the doctor. At present the mine is run in the interests of the manager and of the miners' union. The force includes some of the most unscrupulous of the Idaho 'Mollies,' and in the existing state of feeling between the mine-owners' association and the unions the mine is regarded as a danger and a menace to the peace of the community, and in the event of these troubles coming to a crisis, demanding the presence of the troops, I think it not unlikely that the mine would be shut down by order of the district commander."

"All this he submits respectfully, and signs himself John Darcie Hamilton."

"Now, whether the charges against me are true or false has nothing to do with the question. Is this Darcie Hamilton entitled to be called my guest, to enjoy the shelter of my house, and the privilege of my daughter's society? Is she doing right by herself and by me in making him her friend—not to speak of anything more?"

"Let me look at the letter," said Faith. She held it in her trembling hands, trying to fix her mind upon the last few sentences, and to compare the written words with those she had heard her father pronounce; she turned to the date, and then she went back again to the signature.

"Take it, please," she said, handing it to her father. "I think there is not much to choose among us."

"I don't know what you may mean by that. Include yourself if you think you must do so, but stop there, if you please."

"I did not, father—I mean—not at first."

"Not at first? What am I to understand by that? Let me repeat the words; perhaps you may recognize them."

"Oh, don't repeat them! The whole thing is frightful. How can I talk to you at all when you begin by hecusing me of such things?"

"It is certainly not very pleasant for me to pursue this kind of an investigation, but we may as well go through with it; for your own sake the thing must be cleared up. Abby tells me that she took that message herself, precisely in your language, because you were unwilling to trust it on paper—naming the place and the time of the meeting; and in case there should be a doubt in the young man's mind that the message was genuine, you added these words: 'Tell him it comes from her he called his Mountain Lily.' Faith, I don't wonder that you cover your face!"

"I do not; I deny that they were my words, or that I ever used them."

"It scarcely matters whose words they are; but I should like to know how they came to be so effectual for the purpose. They certainly brought that young man—where he got, not what he came for, evidently, but what he richly deserved. Whoever sent it, the message acted like a charm. How do you explain that?"

Faith replied with a sad little laugh: "Is it my pride or my innocence that's in doubt?"

"Bless me, bless me, I did not think you could be so hard; I must be plain, then. You cannot be ignorant of the critical situation we are in; a war between capital and labor seems inevit-

PLANS FOR WRIGHT'S RELEASE

Father-In-Law of Dundee Bank Cashier Will Aid Him in Court.

Elgin, Ill., Dec. 3.—If the plans of H. C. Edwards, Francis Wright's father-in-law and a stockholder in the defunct bank of Dundee, of which Wright is the alleged defaulting cashier, do not miscarry Wright will be released from the Cook county jail. It is alleged that the shortage will exceed the amount estimated by Reuben Cook, who filed the complaint against Wright. Wright was a member of the building committee of the Dundee Congregational church and treasurer of the Christian Endeavor society.

STATE'S EVIDENCE GOES WRONG

Witnesses for Prosecution Give Stories

Alding Prisoner.

Calumet, Mich., Dec. 3.—Seven witnesses for the state were examined in the McKnight case and the testimony of all was in favor of the prisoner. The defense has claimed all along that Mrs. McKnight procured strychnine to kill mice and the testimony tended to prove this point. It was brought out that John Murphy was a sufferer with asthma and used a medicine he himself had procured. The people's side will be finished by Saturday night.

Japanese Free Prisoners.

Tokio, Dec. 3.—The Japanese population at Mak-Po, Korea, have taken a decided stand on the side of the brokers of that city who were recently put into prison for refusing to pay the guild tax. The Japanese attacked the officials of the prison and burst upon the cells of the brokers, setting them at liberty.

Big Fire at Kinnmundy.

Centralia, Ill., Dec. 3.—A fire at Kinnmundy, supposed to have originated in the Masonic Temple, destroyed the entire block in which it was located and a portion of the block west, containing the Odd Fellows' building and a number of stores. The loss is estimated at $120,000.

Conductor Is Killed.

La Peer, Mich., Dec. 3.—A. L. Kildredge, conductor of the local Michigan Central railway freight, was instantly killed and his body horribly mangled in a rear-end collision south of here. He was 45 years old and leaves a widow and two children.

Starts With Revolution.

Santa Domingo, Dec. 3.—President Morales has taken charge of the provisional government which was established to succeed that of the deposed president, Wos y Gil. The new government already has a revolution on its hands.

Dynamite Wrecks Building.

Hornellsville, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Four robbers entered the grocery store of Blackmer Brothers and blew open the safe with dynamite, getting only $10. The explosion nearly wrecked the building.

Former Congressman Marries.

Warrensburg, N. Y., Dec. 3.—The marriage of ex-Congressman L. W. Emerson to Mrs. Ella Thomas, both of Warrensburg, has just come to light. It is said to have taken place last March.

Cut Steel Workers' Wages.

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 3.—At the plant of the Passaic Steel Company a reduction of 10 per cent in wages has been made. The workmen decided to accept the cut.

Engine Crashes Into Caboose.

Findlay, O., Dec. 3.—Engine No. 50 on the Lake Erie & Western railroad crashed into the caboose of train No. 64.

Commodore Brown Is Dead.

New York, Dec. 3.—Edward M. Brown, former commodore of the New York Yacht club, is dead.

Heresy Is Charged.

Boston, Dec. 3.—An immense sensation has been caused in the Methodist denomination by the filing of formal charges of heresy against Prof. Borden P. Browne of the Boston University Theological School.

Thousands Have Kidney

Trouble and Never Suspect It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment settles an indication of the condition of the kidneys; if it stains your glass it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scaling pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When

Kilmer's Swamp-Root, mentioned in this paper, and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND—Dr. Mutter's Quick Cure for Lost Manhood. Acts immediately. It does the business. Sample free. Kraigoo Chemist, Dept. K, R. H. M. Yankee, Wis.

Sold only in 25c, 50c, & $1.00 Bottles.

BIG OPENING SALE!

EDWARD J. KANN & CO.

To the Citizens of Janesville and Surrounding Country: We beg to announce to you the opening of our new store, located at No. 18 South Main street, on

Saturday, Dec. 5th We Place on Sale

$25,000 Worth of Clothing, Hats, Caps:

AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS, to be sold at sacrifice prices. To introduce ourselves, we will for the first 60 days sell goods at less than the cost to manufacture. These are plain facts and we will substantiate every word. Here are a few words and they will appeal to your personal interest: We have come to your city to do business and heartily ask your co-operation. We have come to your city to stay. We have come to your city to gain your confidence and we will give you every conceivable advantage as a test in order that we may gain it.

What we mean by gaining your confidence is when making a purchase of us you will feel perfectly satisfied that you are going to be fairly dealt with, that you will get far better values than elsewhere and will receive the most courteous treatment at all times, and that we are always willing to show goods whether you wish to buy or not.

Here is another thing we wish to impress upon your mind: Whenever you buy an article from us and you are not perfectly satisfied, return it in the same condition you received it and we will cheerfully exchange it or refund the money. No one could ask us to be more liberal in our business methods. This assertion alone would warrant your confidence. We buy for cash and sell for cash, thereby giving us the advantage of underselling all legitimate competition and still make a fair profit.

For instance: We quote below a price on Unlauded White Shirts, all sizes, at 29c each. These Shirts are the best made Shirts on the market today; best linen bosom lined with a butcher back linen, extension gussets in sleeves and back, which makes it impossible to rip or tear; full 36 inches in length, and will wear equal to any $1.50 Shirt. Take this Shirt to any merchant in this city and ask him if he can sell you the same kind of a shirt for the same money and he will tell you, "No!" He will say, "I don't see how they can sell this Shirt for that money." He will say, "I pay $6.50 per dozen for that kind and have to get 75c each in order to make a profit." If he conscientiously tells the truth that is what he will say. If he does not and you don't think you have a bargain, bring back the Shirt and we will cheerfully give you your 29 cents.

We also particularly call your attention to our special price on our $1.00 White Laudnerea Shirt and our $1.00 Colored Laundered Shirt with cuffs detached. These are guaranteed $1.00 Shirts and we are going to sell them at the introductory price of 50c.

Watch the window and you will see the best $10.00 All Wool Suit of Clothes that is made and in a very swell pattern--our introductory price only $5.00. The other window will contain the best All Wool Underwear, retails the world over for $1.50--our introductory price only 98c. This is a bargain and you will appreciate it when you see them; and everything we sell will be sold with that proportionate saving to you.

Read very carefully the prices we quote on each and every item below and come straight to our store with your mind satisfied that you are going to save some money. It isn't alone the one sale we want, but it is your trade we want. Not one item misrepresented; every article will be sold just as printed in this advertisement. Remember you take no chances. "Your money back if you want it." All goods marked in plain figures. "One price to all." A child can purchase here as well as a grown person.
